

Q Do I understand you to imply there is a relationship between sex and poverty?

A Yes, where sex is not under definite control. If allowed to run its natural course, sex will quickly lead one into the habit of drifting.

Q Is there any relationship between sex and leadership?

A Yes, all great leaders in every walk of life are highly sexed, but they follow the habit of controlling their sex desires, switching them into a driving force behind their occupation.

Q Is the habit of over-indulgence in sex as dangerous as the habit of taking narcotics or liquor?

A There is no difference between these habits. Both lead to hypnotic control, through the habit of drifting!

Q Why does the world look upon sex as something vulgar?

A Because of the vulgar abuse people have made of this emotion. It is not sex that is vulgar. It is the individual who neglects or refuses to control and guide it.

Q Do you mean, by your statement, that one should not indulge the desire for sex?

A No, I mean that sex, like all other forces available to man, should be understood, mastered, and made to serve man. The desire for sex expression is as natural as the desire for food. The desire can no more be killed than one can entirely stop a river from flowing. If the emotion of sex is shut off from the natural mode of expression, it will break out in some other less desirable form, just as a river will, if dammed, break through
